This newsletter is intended to keep you, our health and community partners, informed of our progress, and to inspire our collective efforts in reshaping the food environments in our hospital retail settings.

HEALTHY FOOD ENVIRONMENTS – A HOT TOPIC

It's not just a fringe conversation happening on the sidelines at hospitals and schools anymore. Numerous organizations from the Heart & Stroke to the Senate are calling for renewed attention to our food environments and the role they play on our overall health.

In the past year we have seen hospitals from around the world adopt a similar cause and set their sights on removing sugary beverages and deep-fried foods from their campuses. Now, several organizations are calling on all publicly-funded institutions to follow suit!

As the conversation about how to make the shift to healthy continues, hospitals in our region can feel proud of their participation in the Healthy Foods program, knowing that their efforts are well aligned with strategies proposed by our colleagues in the health community. Read more below about the push (both locally and internationally) to get more healthy food options in institutions!

HOSPITALS IN ACTION!

Creating a truly healthy food environment, which provides plenty of healthy options while simultaneously decreasing the less healthful ones, is not easy. It takes a great deal of planning, menu and nutritional analysis, sourcing and taste testing of new products, and incorporating customer feedback to get it just right.

Our hospital food service leads, staff and volunteers have been working continuously to make these changes a reality! Here are a few recent highlights:

- 90% of cafeterias post calorie and sodium information for entrees and soups
 - Furthermore, 25% of cafeterias are now posting nutrition information for snacks and desserts, and for items in salad and sandwich bars
- 80% of sites do not offer energy drinks in their cafeterias or vending machines
- 25% of sites have removed high-calorie beverages such as pop, iced tea, and lemonade from their vending machines, focusing instead on water, milk, 100% fruit juice and no-calorie or low-calorie options
- Over half of the gift shops have significantly reduced their offering of chocolate bars, chips, and candy
